

Why Invoice?

Every registered supplier of goods and services must issue a tax invoice whenever there is a supply of taxable goods and services.

Invoice

- Tool used by the government to assess and calculate the valid taxes being imposed on the taxpayers
- The invoice is ascertained on the goods and service provided by the seller and is noted down in the tax file for future reference in the tax department.
- Goods and service tax (GST) in India is implementing a latest and revised format for invoicing
- This will facilitate you in overall computation of tax on all the invoiced goods and services.

Invoice must have

- A serial number of the invoice which is consecutive and consist of letters, numbers, special characters, or any combination respectively and is also unique for each and every financial year.
- State name and code are
 - compulsory for interstate supply
 - required if the recipient of goods/services is unregistered and the taxable value of goods or services supplied is Rs. 50,000 or more
- GSTN/unique ID: A GST identification number is necessary for the receiver
- HSN code is compulsorily for the goods and an Accounting code for the services supplied.
- Signature: Invoice needs to be signed by the Supplier or Authorized representative

HSN Codes and GST

- The tax payable under GST is dependent on the HSN code of the product
- There are different tax slabs in GST catering to the variety of Goods and Services and they are directly linked with the HSN codes
- It therefore becomes mandatory for the seller to link all their products with a HSN code
- Exception: For the seller whose annual turnover is <1.5 Crore, and he/she is not sure of correct HSN code, seller may select the tax rate
